

Make sure your emergency plans will work when you need them most.

Tabletop Exercises

In a real emergency, the last thing you need is to find out the hard way that your plan is missing steps or has outdated information. You also want assurance that your team members can reliably perform their functions. Each part of the plan needs to be airtight – from backups, to IR plans, to media and legal strategies – for the whole thing to work. You also need layered contingency plans to cover all the unknowns.

IR Retainers

Being prepared is essential when you're facing an attack. Do you have experts ready to deploy in a moment's notice if your systems go down tomorrow? Will you have to contact a consultant, take discovery calls, explain your environment, sign paperwork, and go through onboarding processes before they can start? IR Retainers allow you to get all the business and onboarding steps out of the way before an attack is at your doorstep.

Work with experts who know, first-hand, just what can go wrong in a real emergency.

Our Risk Advisory Experts Will:

- Engage your team in an in-person cyber incident simulation.
- Introduce realistic circumstances that we've seen derail otherwise great plans.
- Walk through your incident response plan, step-by-step, with relevant stakeholders (including any outsourced vendors who will participate as part of your team).
- Identify gaps or points of friction that would cause delay or failure.
- Help you remediate gaps and update your plan, so you know it will work when you need it most.

- Document your environment to ensure quick IR team deployment in a live cyber incident.
- Help you proactively complete business steps that can slow you down in a cyber incident, such as legal requirements and onboarding.

Keep our teams “at the ready” for you as our priority IR client, ready to deploy at a moment's notice.
